Indian High Commissioner of India to Namibia, Madarapu Subbarayudud, says ties between India and Namibia have strengthened in various sectors, including trade and business, capacity building and skills development, people-to-people contacts and culture.

Subbarayudud said this at the 75th India Day commemorations in Windhoek, which was attended by high-level government officials such as the speaker of parliament, Prof. Peter Katjavivi, Janelly Matundu, the deputy minister for International Relations and Cooperation.

The event, inaugurated by Matundu and Hema Mandarapu, lit the traditional lamp, which symbolises the enduring friendship and cooperation between the two countries.

In his speech, the India High Commissioner, Subbarayudud, referenced the rapid strides made by India in its more than seven decades of journey as a modern nation and republic and certain recent milestones of bilateral partnership with Namibia.

“Founded on shared democratic tradition and values as mutual support and solidarity, the ties between India and Namibia have been getting stronger in various sectors including trade and business, capacity building and skills development, people-to-people contacts and culture,” he said.

Meanwhile, deputy minister Matundu extended warm greetings to the people and the government of India on behalf of the people and Namibia.

She highlighted the vital and most vibrant partnership between the two countries.

She also highlighted how India has been instrumental in promoting reforms in the global political and economic order. The scintillating cultural programme showcased the incredible media's rich cultural heritage, tradition, and tourist attractions.
